MORE ABOUT MAN'S ORIGIN.

SIR ARTHUR KEITH'S LATEST THEORISING.

SIGNIFICANCE OF PEIPING AND JAVA "MEN."

How came we by our brains? Why came we by our brains? With gnawing persistence these two questions crop up throughout Sir Arthur Keith's book "New Discoveries Relating to the Antiquity of Man" (Williams and Norgate, £1 1s.), writes Mr. Wm. Ebbutt in the News Chronicle.

The human brain, he tells us, is the most complex structure in the whole realm of nature. Man is what he is because of his brain. The essential problem of man's evolution is the remarkable expansion of his brain in size and complexity of power. It greatly exceeds that of all the apes and their kin. It has made man the dominant animal of the world.

The astounding feature of the human brain is the rapidity of its growth in babyhood. At birth the gorilla's brain approaches the human size, but while the brain of the baby nearly triples itself in the first year, that of the gorilla has added less than a third to its mass.

Man develops his brain as he matures; the ape develops his jaw. To put it into figures. Wherever the human brain has fallen below 600 cubic centimetres, the owner has been idiot or imbecile. But no anthropoids—gorillas, chimpanzees, or orangs—have brains that rise above 650 cubic centimetres.

"The crucial phase in human evolution," says Sir Arthur, "was the passage from the highest anthropoid level to the lowest human level."

The Leap to Manhood.
The famous Taungs skull is relegated to the apes because of its brain. Peiping man, the latest epoch-making discovery, is man by reason (among other things) of his brain and his chin—that hall-mark of the human.

Peiping man's contemporary, a quarter of a million years ago was Java man: both had small brains. Both are, it seems, among the "missing links," but in different degrees.

A fairly common fault with dual-range coils, even in these days, is that the long wavelength part acts to destroy the effectiveness of the medium wavelength part over a portion of its range.

What is happening is that the long wavelength winding, when shorted out or left out of the circuit, as the case may be, is tuning to a medium wavelength. This wavelength is determined chiefly by the inductance of the coil and the self capacity, to which must be added the circuit capacities.

You will find when this fault is present that over a part of the medium wavelength band much more than the normal amount of reaction is needed. Sometimes, in really bad instances, the circuit cannot be made to oscillate at all over part of the tuning range.

The fault is not too easily removed in made-up coils. Shorting out the long wavelength part, when this is not already effected, will often remove the trouble.

In other cases the addition of a fixed condenser across the long wavelength part will so alter the tuning that the trouble disappears. With a faulty coil you get broad tuning, poor signal strength, and the tuning is difficult.

Need of Selectivity.

If you were to ask your keen wireless friends what is the chief fault with most sets, they would say, not enough selectivity.

The fact is that most receivers have much too poor a tuning curve. Reaction helps, of course, but not to the extent often thought. Our sets, with their one or two screen-grid stages and three, or perhaps four, tuned circuits, provide not enough selectivity for the magnification available.

The difficulty, in part, is that the coils are made of fairly high resistances in order to help ganging. Then again, the tuning condenser may not tune accurately over the whole range, due, perhaps, to a fault in manufacture or to wrong setting up by the user.

Realising these matters, it is not difficult to understand why designers are turning their attention to the super-heterodyne receiver. There is one, using six valves, which is as cheap to build and to use as a good-class three-valve set. Tuning is easy. Dozens of distant stations are brought in at full loud-speaker strength. Quality is good and the construction is so easy that it might well be said to be more easily built than some three-valve sets. This is obviously the set of the future.

A Pick-up Point.

There are several ways of connecting a gramophone pick-up to a set, some, of course, being cheaper than others. Results will be obtained if the two wires from the pick-up are connected to the ends of the grid leak which is joined to the detector.

Owing, however, to the varying load of the grid circuit of the valve upon the pick-up the reproduction is usually not considered good enough. The grid circuit of the valve passes current and the value of the current varies with the vol-age set up by the pick-up. Thus the effective load is varying all the time and distortion results.

Connect one side of the pick-up to the grid of the valve and the other side to the grid-bias battery thus the valve is used as an amplifier with negative bias when playing a record.

A bias of 1.5 volts is usually sufficient and the high tension applied to the valve must be of such a value that the valve is able to work as an amplifier. In some instances the normal voltage used for detection is not quite enough for amplification with grid bias and this point must be watched.

Poor Wander Plugs.

Many faults and cases of poor reception are to be traced to the wander plugs. Some of these are so shaped that a good contact with the sockets of batteries is not possible.

Others, again, have the connecting wires fastened to them awkwardly, so that a poor or intermittent contact is obtained. There are good plugs, and they cost but little more than the inferior kinds.

New Dials.

With the super-heterodyne circuit back in favour again, slow-motion dials with better and slower movements will have to be brought out.

The types now available are perfectly satisfactory in many respects, for standard three- and four-valve sets. But the super-heterodyne set tunes so sharply that we can do with better tuning movements. When a station is in and gone in a part of a degree, something really good in tuning movements is needed for the best results.

GOLD AND WORLD RECOVERY.

UNEQUAL DISTRIBUTION CAUSE OF DEPRESSION.

HOW GERMANY IS AFFECTED.

Berlin, April 29.—That the unequal distribution of the world's gold supply, resulting from German reparation and Allied war-debt payments, disturbed the international economic equilibrium and was chiefly responsible for the acute depression through which the world is passing, formed the main burden of the speech made to-day
by the Governor of the Reichsbank and former Chancellor, Dr. Luther,
at the general meeting of the bank's shareholders.

In support of his thesis, Dr.
Luther quoted some interesting figures on the distribution of bullion per head of the populace in various countries. In Germany it is 36 Marks, as against 94 in pre-war days, in Great Britain 65, against 93 before the war, in the United States 101, compared with 80 in 1914 and in France 214 while before the war it was 150. This makes

France the richest country in the world.

This hoard of gold, Dr. Luther insisted, must be put back into circulation if the world is to recover.
"At a time when most nations and especially Germany are hungering
after long-term credits she not only is being bled white by reparations
but for political and other reasons
the capital she is thus deprived of
is being prevented from flowing into the arteries of international trade and commerce. Thus the gold supplies of the world are being prevented from serving their natural function of circulating through the world, a policy which must inevitably spell disaster to all nations not even excepting those who are hoarding the bullion which is worse than nothing if buried in the vaults of a bank."

A Political Solution.

Furthermore, Dr. Luther stated that the present situation of the world can be cured only from a political angle, namely through a revision of the whole debt question, "putting payments which must continue to be the source of crises until common-sense has returned."

be expected in view of what he had said regarding the international situation and in this connection he furnished the fact that after the general elections to the Reichstag
in September last with their National Socialist landslide an equivalent of 1,000 million Marks
in foreign bills was withdrawn from Germany and that only part of these losses has since been made good.

Finally, he pointed out that Germany's consistently favourable foreign trade balance was not due to an increase of exports but to a decrease of imports which was eloquent testimony of the hard time besetting the nation and further more to the slump of prices for raw materials. Summing up, Dr.
Luther painted a rather black picture of the domestic situation, dwelling on the fact that even the seasonal improvement of unemployment was lagging behind last year's stand and that there was no evidence whatever that the bottom had really been reached.
On the other hand, he emphasized
the apparent psychological recovery of the nation after the unexampled hard and highly critical winter and finally expressed the conviction that by facing realities
instead of ignoring them the Reich
would eventually succeed in rebuilding itself on narrower foundations
"even though at present our problems are as grave as ever, permitting of no easy solution that I can see."

THE SILVER SCREEN.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

PASSION FLOWER.

They started together two years ago absolutely unknown to motion picture audiences in a talkie made by one brother. To-day they are together again in a picture directed by another brother, which is just another way of saying that Kay Johnson and Charles Bickford, who were leads in Cecil B. De Mille's "Dynamite," again play opposite
each other in "Passion Flower," William de Mille's drama of married life based on the Kathleen Norris novel, which will open today at the Queen's Theatre for 3 days.

The eighteen months which have intervened, however, have carried these two personalities from an unknown status to a position in which they are now listed among the ten most popular screen players.
Kay Johnson has been seen to advantage in "The Ship from Shanghai," "This Mad World,"
"Billy the Kid," "Spoilers," and as the central character of "Madam Satan." Charles Bickford lists among his cinema achievements the lead opposite Greta Garbo in
"Anna Christie," and featured roles in "The Sea Bat," and "River's End."

SCENE DICTATED ACROSS CONTINENT.

After finishing the script for "Paid," John Crawford's new starring vehicle which will open on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre, Charles MacArthur hopped off for New York to complete work on a play. After the writer departed, however, Director Sam Wood discovered he had overlooked an entire sequence which was to be filmed at once. Reaching MacArthur at 1
a.m. by long-distance telephone,
Wood disclosed his plight. "Okay," responded MacArthur, "put your stenographer on the wire and I'll dictate it."

At 2.30 a.m. MacArthur went sleepily back to bed and the stenographer began transcribing her notes, having the sequence dialogue ready for work at 6 a.m. Thus perhaps an entire week's delay on production was avoided.

The picture is a talkie version of the famous Bayard Veiller underworld drama, "Within the Law," adapted for the screen by MacArthur and Lucien Hubbard.
Robert Armstrong and Marie Prevost head the supporting cast.

CENTRAL THEATRE.

"LADIES LOVE BRUTES."

Clara Bow, Ruth Chatterton and Mary Brian. These are some of the charming ladies of the screen with whom Fredric March has been in love. Now he has a new affinity for the purpose of film entertainment.
She is Mary Astor of the classic
features and raven-black hair.

March and Miss Astor provide the supporting leads for George Bancroft in his newest Paramount release, "Ladies Love Brutes," which is now showing at the Central Theatre.

"Ladies Love Brutes" is the story of the fortunes of a red-blooded, two-faced, structural steel worker who becomes such a success
at his trade that he sets up in business for himself as a building contractor. He quickly finds that his business will only expand in direct ratio to his popularity in social circles and so he tries to become a success in the social life of the big town.

The play is based on an original stage production, "Pardon My Glove" by Zoe Akins. The adaptation was written by Waldemar
Young and Herman J. Mankiewicz.
Powland Y. Lee, director of "The Wolf of Wall Street," was the megaphone.

The cast includes Stanley Fields,
David Durand, Freddie Burke,
Frederick, Ferike Boros, Margaret
Quimby, Lawford Davidson, Caryl
Allister and E. H. Calvert.

UNRULY MOB IN MANILA.

DEMONSTRATION IN FAVOUR OF "CHINESE SOVIETS."

Manila, May 1.—Serious trouble was narrowly averted here to-day during May Day celebrations when 5,000 Filipino Reds paraded the city carrying banners which read "Long live the Soviets of China."

They staged a demonstration in Calocan, a suburb of Manila, and the Police had to arrest 64, including two leaders.

The attitude of the mob was ugly, and 400 members of the Constabulary were brought to the scene and averted probably bloodshed by presenting bayonets to the demonstrators.

Finally the mob was dispersed with a fire hose.

So far as present reports go the rest of the Philippines celebrated May Day quietly.

The writer pushes his speculation no further; but he returns to it again and again. In this book of 500 pages, packed with all the latest research, there is nothing more exciting.

Have we here at last the origin of the human brain?

Modern Man Arrives.
To come back to modern man—the search for his ancestors becomes more feverish every year. Sir Arthur Keith pays a warm tribute of admiration to the researches of the young scientists connected with both the Oxford and the Cambridge Schools of Anthropology. He gives much attention to Miss Dorothy Garrod's explorations in Palestine and Gibraltar and to Mr. L. S. B. Leakey's investigations in East Africa.

In the caves of Palestine, as in the caves of Europe, lived a primitive race of cave-dwellers—the massive-browed, slouching, Neanderthal race, "sometimes cannibals—who seem to have come to an end and vanished at the time of the last ice age, some ten thousand years ago.

Without any bridge visible between the two there next appear the "members of settled communities"—tillers of the soil, raisers of cattle, spinners, weavers, and makers of earthenware."

So that in the meanwhile agriculture had been discovered and cattle had been tamed. Where? By whom?

By a race which was much like ours. And though perhaps at Ur or at Kish he has yet been found to confirm it, Sir Arthur Keith believes the cradle of the modern world will be found in the country between the Black Sea and the Indian Ocean.

There lived the old Sumerians, and he believes that the Sumerians, with their strongly marked features, were indeed the pioneers of the offspring of the pioneers. South-Western Asia is the country of the Caucasians, big-headed men in whom the mass of brain, characterisation of facial features, nose and chin, and strength of body, are the marks of a race that spread from Ireland to the Gates of India.

In South-Western Asia, therefore, Sir Arthur Keith holds that civilisation as we know it probably began.

LOUD-SPEAKERS OF THE FUTURE.

POSSIBLE ELIMINATION OF THE VALVE.

At a joint meeting of the North-western Centre of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, the Institution of Post Office Electrical Engineers, and the Manchester Association of Engineers in the College of Technology, Manchester, a paper by Mr. S. G. Brown, F.R.S., entitled "Loud speakers since their conception with gramophone pick-ups and wireless recording apparatus" was read in his absence by Major C. A. Russell Stower.

The author, who is associated with the firm of Messrs. Brown, Ltd., the loudspeaker manufacturers, gave an interesting account of how that device came to be so named. In 1909 he had invented a single point telephone relay, which magnified the voice over long telephone lines, thus increasing the distance of communication.

This relay magnified the electric currents some hundreds of times, and thus rendered it possible to bring sound into the room through a funnel attached to the telephone receiver, thus doing away with an ordinary head-phone. This contrivance he named a "loud speaker," and the name had now become common throughout the world.

As to the future for loud-speakers science may evolve new designs, or alterations in sets, possibly even the elimination of the valve, may change the entire conditions of the present loud speakers.

The lecture was illustrated with slides and gramophone demonstrations involving pick-up attachments, in which connection the author of the paper said he was confident that the moving coil pick-up was well worth developing, and might in the end supersede the electro-magnetic one. A device invented by himself, referred to as a "so called pick-up," but (he felt) worthy of the name "gramophone electric sound amplifier" was demonstrated, of which Mr. Brown wrote that the fact that there were no valves, probably accounted for its excellent performance. Another demonstration was of a machine (constructed by his firm) for effecting recording from the pick-up, a subject, in which, he said, there was considerable interest nowadays.

NEW WIRELESS WONDER.

TO REVOLUTIONISE TELEPHONY.

St. Margaret's (Kent).—The most revolutionary advance in wireless telephony which has yet taken place was demonstrated to-day on the lonely downs at the foot of the obelisk commemorating the work of the Dover Patrol.

By means of two large circular reflectors facing seawards 100 yards apart and a newly-discovered ray, clear and uninterrupted conversation was conducted over long periods with a station on the cliffs, twelve miles from Calais, on a wavelength of only 18 centimetres.

The transmitting and receiving aerials that were used were less than an inch long and the amazingly low power of half a watt—just enough to light a flash-lamp bulb—was all that was required. Hitherto the shortest wave-length possible for commercial uses has been in the region of 15 metres or more, and the power required to produce such a wave would be some 5 kilowatts.

This discovery, known as the micro-ray method, is the result of the co-operative work of the International Telephone and Telegraph Laboratories at Hendon and those of Le Matériel Téléphonique de Paris, and its essential principle is a carefully guarded secret.

To End Congestion.

In brief, however, the speaker's voice is converted into a ray at the transmitting station by means of a device known as a "micro radion" tube, generating waves oscillating at 1,600,000 times a second. These micro rays are concentrated by the two reflectors into a fine "pencil" ray, which, behaving in a manner similar to that of light, is thrown into space and picked up by associated apparatus at the other end.

The possibilities of this discovery are almost boundless. They envisage: (1), the complete disappearance of the familiar and expensive tall aerials and elaborate stations; (2), the end of the present serious congestion of the ether, which is threatening to make rationing necessary; (3), universal radio-telephony at a relatively small cost; and (4), intense development of television, which is thus brought within commercial bounds.

Mr. E. H. Shaughnessy, Assistant Engineer-in-Chief, G.P.O., said after the demonstration that he had been impressed beyond measure with what had been done.

"It is marvellous, and is an absolute departure from anything that has been carried out before in this field," he stated. "The only disadvantage, so far as I can see now, is that since the micro-rays, like those of light will not curve, stations can only be erected at points between which there is no obstruction, such as a range of hills, and sufficiently near together not to be interfered with by the earth's curvature. But I am confident that this difficulty will be overcome probably by some kind of reflecting apparatus."

Mr. Shaughnessy added that this was the first time the history of wireless that so short a wave-length had been commercially used, and, in his opinion, the way in which so small a power was sustained was wonderful.

POCKET BATTLESHIP NEARLY READY.

GERMAN PRESIDENT TO LAUNCH NEW CRAFT.

Berlin, April 28.—Preparations have been completed for the christening by President von Hindenburg on May 10 at the stroke of noon of the first German "pocket-battleship," Erzak Proussen, whose name is still being kept secret though there is reason to assume that the President with whom the choice of the name lies will decide upon the name Proussen, the name borne by the condemned dreadnought which the pocket-battleship is replacing. In honour of the occasion the German fleet will assemble at Kiel, to leave afterwards for manoeuvres which will culminate in a naval review before the President who himself attends the manoeuvres on board the cruiser Koenigsberg.

MEMBER POSTED AS A DEFAULTER.

SUIT FOR $1,000 AGAINST CLUB DISMISSED.

Malacca, April 28.—A case of interest came up for hearing in the Muar Civil Court when Mr. J. B. Weiss, the Registrar and Magistrate from Johore Bahru, came especially to hear the case.

The plaintiff, Mr. M. J. Heywood, of Nordan Estate, Ulu Muar, sued the Muar Civil Service Club for $1,000 damages for having posted him on the club notice board as a defaulter. The case came up for hearing on April 12. The claim was dismissed.

The plaintiff was represented by Mr. R. G. V. Scholes. The defendant was represented by Mr. C. H. Cooper. The defendants were the president, the committee and the secretary of the Muar Civil Service Club.

The plaintiff alleged that the club wrongfully posted him as a defaulter in contravention of the club rules which said that six weeks' notice in writing by registered post must be given before action could be taken. At the time the notice was sent the plaintiff was in England on leave and the notice was sent to the manager of the estate. Later the club got the address of the plaintiff in England and sent the notice there. The very next day after the notice had been posted the plaintiff's name was posted on the club notice board as a defaulter.

Mr. Cooper, for the defence, said that the posting of the plaintiff's name as a defaulter was privileged and that no damage was caused to the plaintiff.

It was held by the court that the plaintiff had failed to prove that he suffered any damage. The suit was, therefore, dismissed. Mr. Heywood was justified in bringing the suit in the circumstances. Each party would bear his own costs. The plaintiff was not barred from taking action against any individual.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL DISPUTE.

MINISTER'S DEFENCE:
 APPLYING THE LAW IMPARTIALLY.

London.—In view of the dispute which has arisen in regard to the proposed building of a Roman Catholic school at Colwyn Bay—the Denbighshire Education Committee have rejected the plans—Mr. Morgan Jones (Under Secretary for Education) has made a statement explaining the position of the Board of Education, who, after holding a public inquiry, sanctioned the proposed school. Mr. Morgan Jones said:

There is a school at Colwyn Bay now called St. Joseph's School, which has been organised during the last few years by the local Catholic priest. He left that time had come to build a new Catholic school, and in order to realise his ambition he proceeded to secure money for the purpose. He was able to announce at the inquiry that he had a certain sum already promised. The Local Education Authority took objection to this proposed new school, and in accordance with our usual procedure the Board decided to hold an inquiry and send down an experienced person to conduct it. This was done. The point of the inquiry was as to whether such a school was necessary and under the Act of Parliament that must be decided having regard to three issues—namely, (1) whether or not there would be an economy to the rates, (2) what were the wishes of the parents in the matter, and (3) whether or not such a school would be conducive to the better provision of secular education. The Inspector reported definitely that in regard to number one it could not be maintained that there would be an economy to the rates.

"Parents."
 In regard to the second point—namely, the wishes of the parents—a most unusual claim was advanced on behalf of the Local Education Authority—that is to say, that the word "parents" mentioned in section 49 of the Act means the parents of the whole area and not simply the parents of the children concerned directly with this particular school. That, of course, is a legal point, but I understand that in the whole thirty years of the operation of the 1902 Act that contention has never before been seriously advanced. The Inspector took the view that the word "parents" had the more limited application. Clearly if the other view prevailed then it would be practically impossible to provide a non-provided school within the terms of the 1902 Act, for the overwhelming majority of the parents in the Colwyn Bay area would undoubtedly be non-Catholic. They would simply swamp the meagre Catholic community in the area. Whether the 1902 Act was wise in making the provision it did concerning the recognition and establishment of new non-provided schools is beside the point. The Act is there on the Statute-book and it is the business of the Board to implement the Act.

Interests of Education.
 In regard to the third condition—namely, the interests of secular education, the position is equally clear. The evidence adduced by the Catholic authorities at the inquiry was quite explicit that they would prefer to retain their pupils at the old inefficient school to sending them to the local non-Catholic school. That may be wise or unwise according to one's point of view. The question, therefore, remains whether it is better that a new school should be allowed to be built in accordance with some modern standard and staffed in such a way that the children could have the best possible educational guidance and instruction. The Board took the view, therefore, in regard to the second and third conditions as to the wishes of the parents and the interests of secular education, that the case was made out and so gave its decision in favour of the application.

But having regard to the necessity for reorganisation in this area we allowed a school for 110 children up to the age of 11 or 12. The older children we hope, will be able to attend the provided schools and so participate in the educational benefits which reorganisation must inevitably bring. There is one thing I want to make quite clear. There seems to be an idea abroad that the Board is allowing a new school to be provided out of the rates. That cannot be done under the law at present. This school will be treated like every other non-provided school—which has been approved by the Board of Education as such. I cannot help feeling that much of the opposition to this decision arises from opposition to the principles embodied in the famous 1902 Act of Parliament. People may still entertain their objections to that principle. But the Board of Education as a Board must operate the law as it is. That is what we have been trying to do as impartially as possible in the Colwyn Bay case.

ADVERTISING BY WIRELESS.

THE B.B.C. CHARGED WITH HUMBUC.
 "SONG PLUGGING."

A meeting of Associated British Authors and Composers was held for the discussion of methods of stamping out "song-plugging" practices in broadsheets by dance bands from hotels and dance halls outside the B.B.C. studios.

Mr. J. F. Lewis, who presided, said that there was a practice, well known to publishers, of subsidising artists in order to advertise new songs.

"When broadcasting came along," said Mr. Lewis, "the payments for ordinary concerts became restricted. Concerts were not of much real value owing to the big drop in sheet-music sales, but wireless performances were a different matter.

"The advertisement, in this case, went further afield, and brought much bigger sales—if not of sheet music, at any rate of gramophone records, which, at 91 per cent. per double-sided record, made wireless 'plugging' a more or less paying proposition.

"The B.B.C. deals with far too many professional people not to be aware of this matter, so that there can be no question of their being unaware that wireless is already being used, and used very widely, for advertising—in spite of Sir John Reith's statement that he is definitely opposed to the use of wireless for advertising.

"Every subsidised performance that comes over the ether is an advertisement for a music publisher, and is on an entirely different plane from work performed on its merits alone. We in the music trade know that this is the case, and I deliberately charge the B.B.C. with knowing it also, and condoning it, while at the same time hypocritically denying that any advertising goes on."

"Winked At" by Officials.

"The attitude taken up by the B.B.C. officials is this: 'It is not our business what music is played by the outside bands, or what terms publishers make with them.' The conclusions one is compelled to arrive at are that the officials of the B.B.C. are fully aware that advertising is going on, and that they not merely wink at it, but, by their apathy, encourage it.

"One would have thought it entirely their business to ascertain how much of the £45,000 a year they pay for the right to use music actually goes to subsidisers. But no, that question is apparently nobody's business at the B.B.C."

The meeting passed a resolution expressing strong disapproval of "the present use of wireless for advertising purposes by a small section only of the music trade," and urging the B.B.C. to "widen the sphere of its usefulness as an advertising medium, or, alternatively, to bring the practice of advertising by wireless to an end."

B.B.C. Reply.

The following reply to the criticisms was made by a representative of the B.B.C.: "The criticism of the B.B.C. would be much more constructive and therefore much more practical if Mr. Lewis would acquaint the Corporation with definite cases of subsidising by publishers of dance orchestras for broadcast performances.

"It will be remembered that as a protest against alleged song plugging the B.B.C. two years ago declined to allow the titles of dance numbers or the singing of choruses to be included during the broadcast. For several months the name of the orchestra and the place where it was played were announced at the opening of the broadcast, and at intervals of twenty minutes during the performance from the studio at Savoy-hill.

"Meetings between the publishers and the B.B.C. were held at Savoy-hill during this period, and considerable negotiation took place, the attitude of the B.B.C. being that it would not be a party to any advertising during the broadcasts of particular numbers by individual publishers. That has been the attitude of the B.B.C. ever since dance music was first broadcast.

"If music publishers are subsidising any person for the purpose of getting dance numbers played, Mr. Lewis, or whoever else brings such a charge, should substantiate his statement and the B.B.C. will then know what course to take. The B.B.C. controls as far as possible the proportion of any one publisher's material in a single broadcast and keeps a check on the numbers played during the performances."

HONG KONG AND SERVICE MEN

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS,"]

Sir,—May I venture a few words in contradiction of your biased statement which accompanied "Argyll's Tenor Sax" letter in the columns of your paper?

I have travelled on the Ferry, to and fro, at all hours of the day and night, and have never yet seen any cases of men in uniform making themselves obnoxious through drink. They do not get the chance to do it, because "Service Discipline," being more rigid than that applied to the Civilian, the soldier would be immediately apprehended should he cause a breach. Why it is a "crime," to walk about with a "button" undone much less behave in a riotous manner on the Ferry!

Why are we to be so continually scorned by that word Drunk—cannot the populace of this Colony realize that it is not drunk which has given birth to the unfriendly attitude that exists, but something far deeper?

Need "Argyll Tenor Sax" wonder any longer why the Hong Kong Public shuns the Service men, isn't it obvious, everywhere we go, that we are not wanted. It is evident at every social function and place of entertainment.

When the Hong Kong Public show a little more magnanimity, and a little less superciliousness in their dealings with the men that serve them, then will the time be ripe to prove, as we have proved in other Colonies and Protectorates of the British Empire, that the British Soldier, Sailor or Airman "is a man for a' that!"

SANS REPROCHE.

Hong Kong, May 3, 1931.

[It is a pity that "Sans Reproche" should spoil his letter by (a) denying that some of his comrades do appear on the Star Ferry on an evening for liquor, and (b) being resentful when this failing is pointed out. No suggestion of "riotous" behaviour is made, but a "man in uniform who is under the weather" is an unhappy conspicuous—and the Military Police are not everywhere! It is very regrettable if any Service men feel hostility towards Hong Kong Civilians. That such a thing is general we do not believe. On the other hand, we can only repeat an appeal already made in this Colony to Civilians—friendliness towards Service men is appreciated, especially by youngsters out here for the first time.—Ed.]

THE MURDER OF VIVIAN GORDON.

A RUSSIAN CHARGED WITH THE CRIME.

New York.—The Vivian Gordon murder mystery has been revived in startling fashion by the news that the police had arrested five men.

One of these, Harry Stein, a 32-year-old Russian, will be charged directly with the murder. The remaining four men are being held as material witnesses.

The police admitted they had given Stein and the four witnesses the Third Degree all last night in an isolated, sound-proof room at police headquarters. They confronted them with evidence obtained by tracing Miss Gordon's missing mink coat and diamond-studded wrist watch after they had been offered to a Jersey City pawnbroker.

It will be recalled that the body of the red-haired New York night club hostess was found in a New York park on the morning of February 22. She had been strangled with a stout cord and beaten about the head with a blunt instrument.

Of the four men arrested at the same time as Stein, two were mentioned in the dead woman's diary as involved in a "bank job." The names of three of the men are given as "Greenburg, Butterman," and Levine.

The arrests have come at a time when the Press and the public are convinced that Vivian Gordon was the most important link in the charges against the New York police and magistrates. Amongst the "higher ups" who should be subpoenaed by Mr. Seabury, according to the dead woman's diary, is an elderly justice of the New York Supreme Court, who is described as many times a guest at her fashionable night club; a former member of the Washington Cabinet; and a man who was for years President of the New York Board of Education.

SUPER-TAX FRAUD CHARGES.

"WON £30,000 BY GAMBLING."

During the resumed hearing at Bow-street Police-court of a super-tax prosecution against a manufacturer, a City accountant was asked questions about alleged false certificates for balance-sheets.

Theophile Jean Baptiste Desnos, 33, chemical manufacturer, Hillside House, Richmond, Surrey, was summoned by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for making false statements, otherwise than on oath, in returns submitted by him for super-tax purposes in each of the seven years from 1921 to 1927.

At a previous hearing it was stated that Desnos had been served with notice of twenty-six additional charges with respect to tax returns or business accounts dating back to 1910. A total of £100,000 was alleged to have been omitted. The tax payable on that amount was £40,000, of which Desnos had already paid £35,200 on account.

During investigations Desnos was said to have told of having won £30,000 in 1914 and 1915 by gambling at Monte Carlo and Deauville.

For the defence it was said that Desnos's accounts were in charge of accountants, who had satisfied themselves that they were in order. Mr. F. J. Fernau appeared for the prosecution.

Whole Sum Paid.

Mr. Roland Oliver, K.C., defending, now said that the whole sum asked for by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue had been paid by Desnos.

Mr. Albert Charles Grover, of Grover and Son, accountants, Byward-street, E.C., who inquired into Desnos's accounts at his own request, was recalled. Replying to Mr. Oliver, he said that when the Revenue authorities were making inquiries Desnos told him to let him know everything. Desnos did not suggest that he should keep anything back.

Mr. Oliver: Did you appreciate that if he would tell the truth he would not be prosecuted?—Yes. "Did you tell the truth and disclose everything you knew?" asked Mr. Oliver.

The magistrate told Mr. Grover that he need not answer any question which he thought might incriminate himself.

Mr. Oliver: Did you, for your own skin's sake, keep things back until you were forced to disclose them?

Mr. Grover said that everything was disclosed so far as he knew.

"Turned Out to be False." A balance-sheet was shown to Mr. Grover, who said that at the time he signed it he believed it to be true, but he agreed that it now turned out to be false.

Mr. Oliver: You had been doing that year after year from 1911 onwards, certifying balance-sheets of the company which suppressed all reference to the Tamsmanian Eucalyptus Co., in Melbourne. Every time you put your signature you knew it was a false statement?—Practically that was so.

Now only disclosed things to the Revenue when you were driven to it?—I don't think so. Everything that the inspector asked for I gave him. There was no question of being driven to it. There was no intention on my part to conceal anything from the authorities or anyone else.

Mr. James Thomas Womack, Inspector of Taxes, recalled, said that as a result of the further investigation the total amount of the duty due was £38,000, of which £35,200 had been paid.

The hearing was formally adjourned, the magistrate stating that he would later commit Desnos for trial.

ARMY REFORM IN JAPAN.

MECHANIZATION DISCUSSED BY GENERALS.

SCHEME POSSIBLE ONLY BY REDUCING STRENGTH.

Tokyo, May 1.—Considerable importance is attached to the conference of Army chiefs which is opening this afternoon at the residence of the Minister of War, General Jiro Minami.

The meeting has been called to consider the proposals submitted by the Committee which for some time past has been considering the question of Army reforms centering around a reduction in the personnel, the reorganization of the principal units and increased mechanization.

In view of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva next year, the military authorities appear hesitant about carrying out any drastic reduction before then, so otherwise they will be left with nothing with which to bargain. At the same time, influential military officials are reported to be anxious to increase mechanization, but owing to the cost they are unable to do so without reducing the size of the Army.

Smaller Divisions.

The Government is not likely to sanction expenditure on mechanization elsewhere as it wishes to cut down expenditure and not to increase it. The probability is, therefore, that it will ultimately be decided either to reduce the number of divisions, which is at present 17, or reduce the size of the divisions by reorganization and at the same time abolish or amalgamate various military schools. The savings thus accruing will then be used to increase mechanization.

In the meantime the Government is said to be contemplating the merging of the Ministries of War and the Navy into a single Ministry of National Defence, at the same time making civilians eligible as ministers, instead of as at present confining these offices to military and naval officers. These proposals, however, are still immature and are bound to meet with considerable opposition if they are put forward seriously.

DOCTOR AND YOUNG FRENCH GIRL.

BROUGHT TO LONDON "TO ENTER A CONVENT."

MARRIAGE WITHOUT CONSENT OF PARENTS VOID.

The story of a young French girl alleged to have been brought to London by a middle-aged French doctor and secretly married to him at the Paddington, W., register office, was told to Lord Merrivale in the Divorce Court.

Clara Marie Lucie de Massa (otherwise Horveno), of Rue Villeneuve-Martin, St. Nazaire, France, petitioned through her father for a nullity decree against Raoul Hildebrand de Massa. The petition was granted.

The petition alleged that on July 28, 1927, the girl went through a form of marriage with de Massa, described as a widower, and that afterwards they lived at Kensington Gardens-square, W. At that time neither of the parties was domiciled in this country, but were of French domicile.

Mrs. de Massa's case was that she met Dr. de Massa at Cannes, where he was practising as a doctor, and treated her mother, who was ill. He induced her to accompany him to this country.

It was alleged that the marriage was without the consent of her parents, and that the marriage, by the law of France, was no "agreement" and therefore void. Mr. Bayford, K.C. (for Mrs. de Massa) argued that that decision was binding on this court.

Vanished Husband.

When the girl was brought to this country, said Mr. Bayford, it was stated that she was 22, and was being brought to a convent. The same age was given on the marriage certificate, where Dr. de Massa was described as 56 years old.

Mrs. de Massa gave evidence through an interpreter.

Lord Merrivale, granting a decree of nullity, said that Mrs. de Massa was a young Frenchwoman who by the French law could not be married without the consent of her parents. That consent never was obtained. The ceremony was performed at an English register office, and later the husband disappeared. It seemed to him that such a case was necessarily a matter for the French tribunal. All that was now necessary was for him to declare the marriage void.

"GUILTY BUT INSANE."MURDER OF MR. JOHN HARRISON ON BOARD THE "EMPRESS OF RUSSIA."*CORREA'S MENTALITY ANALYSED: IMPORTANT MEDICAL CONCLUSIONS.

A verdict of guilty, but that he was of unsound mind at the time of the crime, was brought by the jury at the Criminal Sessions yesterday when Martin Gonzalez Correa, a Filipino, was charged with the murder of John Harrison, a plumber on board the R.M.S. Empress of Russia, by shooting him while the vessel was on a voyage from Hong Kong to Manila on February 24. Correa was a steerage passenger who embarked at Kobe.

Dr. Griffiths, who had kept accused under observation for over two months, expressed the opinion that the man was mentally unsound and that it would be a fairly common thing for a person in his condition to make a homicidal attempt.

Dr. Pfister, another witness for the defence, described the accused as a man of "split mind," diagnosing his disease as dimensia precox. Witness said that in the case of a man afflicted with this disease certain faculties of the mind would be normal while others would be faulty. The patient would be subject to delusions, which were symptoms accompanying the disease. During the period of observation the accused showed evidence of these symptoms in a pronounced form. In the opinion of witness, it was very probable that on the day of the crime the accused's mental condition would have been consistent with the case of a man who did a thing, but knowing it was wrong.

BIBLE IN HAND AFTER THE SHOOTING.

The trial opened before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp). Mr. Somerset Fitzroy prosecuted for the Crown, and Mr. Leo d'Almada, jun., instructed by Mr. M. K. Lo, of Messrs. Lo & Lo, defended.

Accused, when asked to plead, disregarded the advice of his counsel and pleaded guilty to the charge. Mr. d'Almada explained later that before the Court sat he had been trying to persuade the accused to plead not guilty, but the latter had refused to alter his plea. He (Counsel) was quite sure that accused was fit to plead and stand his trial.

His Lordship finally decided to enter a plea of not guilty and proceed with the trial. The following jury was empanelled:—Mr. E. R. Child (foreman), Mr. S. A. Lopes, Mr. F. S. Smith, Mr. Stephen Kwong Luk Tsang, Mr. A. Brostedt, Mr. H. McKechnie and Mr. Mak Siu Kai.

Facts of the Crime.

In opening the case for the Crown, Mr. Fitzroy said that accused was a third-class passenger on the boat, on his way to Manila after leaving a University in California, while the late Mr. Harrison was a plumber on board. At about eight o'clock on the evening of the day in question there was a fan tau game going on on "C" deck, which was used by third-class passengers. There were about half a dozen players and, as usual one man was keeping the bank. Harrison was, apparently, looking on.

As a third-class passenger, prisoner had access to that part of the ship. Suddenly a shot rang out. This appeared to have struck something and ricocheted, finishing up by striking the fan tau banker in the forehead. This man fell forward on the table and there was a general stampede, during which other shots were fired from above.

These shots were heard by the Master-at-Arms, a Staff Captain and members of the crew, who rushed to the spot and found Harrison lying on the deck dangerously wounded. A bullet had entered by the lower jaw, had travelled upwards and come out at the side of his forehead. He was immediately attended to but later died and was buried at Manila.

As the circumstances surrounding the shooting were not immediately known a search party obtained arms and commenced investigations, in the course of which a revolver was found which was alleged to have been the weapon used by prisoner, and he was later apprehended and locked up. He was brought back to Hong Kong and handed over to the police. Counsel added that there were no actual eye-witnesses to the shooting but prisoner was arrested as the result of enquiries.

Staff Captain's Evidence.

Captain Herbert James, Staff Captain on board the Empress of Russia, said that shortly after 8 p.m. on February 24, it was reported to him that there had been some shooting going on. He went as quickly as possible to the steerage deck, but was delayed by the discovery of a closed watertight door on "B" deck, which caused him to retrace his steps. Upon arrival on "C" deck, he found Harrison, the ship's plumber, lying on his back. He found the man had been wounded in the head, and was bleeding considerably.

As witness was inspecting the body, he heard a shout, and saw the accused run across the starboard side of the deck, and heard him say what he thought to be "Are you looking for me?" Accused then picked up a chopper or a knife from one of the mess tables. Witness went back to the upper deck for assistance, and found several of the officers being supplied with arms. He accompanied a party in a search for accused. Subsequently he received a report and found that all the Filipinos, including the accused, who was handcuffed, had been rounded up and drawn up on "C" deck.

Accused was taken to "B" deck, and witness asked him if he had done the shooting. He replied in good English "Yes, I shot two men." Witness then asked "Why did you shoot the men?" and accused answered "I don't know; my head seemed to go black."

Bible in His Hand.

The Master-at-Arms corroborated the main parts of evidence given by previous witnesses. He stated that after he had issued arms to his party they visited the steerage cabin where the passengers were ordered out for muster on deck. Accused was one of those who came out from the cabin. He was carrying a Bible in one hand and a newspaper in the other.

Mr. W. F. Winter, another witness from the vessel, said that he went half way down the ladder from "B" deck to "C" deck when he saw some distance away a man lying on the ground. Previously he had heard a shot fired from the direction of "C" deck. At this moment he saw the accused with something in his hand which appeared to be a firearm. Accused threw the weapon in the direction of the ladder, remarking, "what do you want?" The weapon seemed to roll off the latter step and witness saw the accused stoop down. Witness then retreated and joined the armed party.

Sergeant J. E. Scott, Police Armourer, said that the revolver which was handed to him was a five-chambered weapon fully loaded, but in a very rusty condition. He found that three of the cartridges were spent and the weapon appeared to have been completely jammed after firing the last shot.

THE CURRENCY COMMISSION.TO LEAVE ON FRIDAY.

The members of the Currency Commission have nearly finished their work in the Colony, and are due to leave next Friday. Mr. G. L. M. Clauson, Secretary of the Commission, said that the Commission's Report would be presented to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, so Hong Kong will not know its fate for a long time to come.

Mr. Clegg, the senior member of the commission has been confined to his bed in the Peninsula Hotel for several days, but he was able to resume work yesterday afternoon, and his health is practically restored. When Mr. Clegg leaves here he will proceed direct to his home in South Africa.

Mr. Clauson will go to England by way of Shanghai, Japan and America. When he arrives there he will present the Commission's report to the Secretary of State.

All of the members of the Commission say that they have enjoyed their stay in the Colony, and in their opinion, they have never had the pleasure of visiting a more delightful place. They were full of praise for Hong Kong people and for the city itself.

Medical Conclusions.

Dr. G. V. A. Griffiths, medical officer in charge of Victoria Gaol, said that he had accused under observation since February 28. During this period witness on several occasions, found the man to be definitely unreasonable in his behaviour. On March 14 accused was told to go with the attendant to the reception room where his Counsel and solicitor were waiting to interview him. Accused refused to go in spite of witness pointing out to him that the interview would be for his own good. Accused began to cry and continued in his refusal.

Later on the accused began to refuse food. The man did not say he was sick but merely refused to take any food. He continued to do so for some time. He would not take a wash, have a bath, or clean himself.

Dr. Griffiths said that as a result of the several conversations with the accused he came to the conclusion that the man was mentally unsound. It would be fairly common for a man in his condition to make a homicidal attempt.

Dr. M. O. Pfister, who stated that he had long experience in the handling of mental cases at hospitals in Heidelberg and also in Peking, said that he visited the accused four times and on each occasion remained with him for about an hour and a half, putting the man through certain recognized tests for insanity. During these visits witness was quite sure that the man was not acting abnormally.

Man of "Split Mind."

Witness continued that he found the accused to be suffering from a condition of mental disorder. Accused had been suffering from this disease for at least six months, the latest medical definition for which dimensia precox. Witness would describe him as a man of "split mind," who had certain faculties quite normal while others were faulty. Delusions and illusions were symptoms of this disease, and the accused had them in a pronounced form.

Dr. Pfister was of the opinion that on February 24 it was very probable that the accused's mental condition would have been consistent with that of a man doing an unlawful thing not knowing it was wrong.

In answering to Crown Counsel, witness said that he applied intelligence, reasoning, memory and physical tests. He recalled from his notes that accused made a statement about being followed and haunted by a man in California. Accused had also stated that while in prison he heard secret voices, including that of his brother, which came like telephone calls.

Accused's Strange Actions.

In a brief address for the defence, Mr. d'Almada pointed to the complete absence of motive for the crime and also the strange actions of the accused at the time. He told the jury that the fact of the man asking a question such as "are you looking for me?" and carrying a Bible at the time he was apprehended pointed conclusively, apart from the medical evidence, that the man was insane at the time.

After Crown Counsel's reply and his Lordship's summing up, during which he asked the jury to give careful consideration to the medical evidence, the jury retired for three minutes to return with a unanimous verdict of "Guilty, but insane."

His Lordship committed Correa to prison pending the pleasure of H.E. the Governor.

UNIVERSITY NEWS.DEGREE & MID-SESSIONAL EXAMINATIONS.*VACATION BEGINS ON MAY 16.

The mid-session examinations for Arts and Engineering students and the degree examinations for medical students of the Hong Kong University are now being held at the Great Hall daily from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The summer vacation will begin on May 16 and end on September 16. The only University hostel opened for students during the holidays will be Lugard Hall. May Hall and Eliot Hall will be closed, while Ricci, Morrison, and St. John's will also be open as usual. There have been a large number of applicants for residence in Lugard Hall (during the vacation) and that students some have been obliged to apply to other hostels. However, preference will be given to students from Straits, Java, and all places other than Hong Kong.

Picnics.

The various societies and clubs of the University have made arrangements for picnics after the examinations and before the University closes for the summer vacation. The Arts Association will have a picnic on May 14 and the Education Society will hold one on May 15. The destination will be either Shek O or Silver Mine Bay. The Christian Society will have a whole day camping picnic at Telegraph Bay on May 16. The last named have made arrangements for mountain climbing, swimming and various games, etc. St. Stephen's Hall, too, have arranged their picnic.

Kwangtung Athletic Meeting.

Lee Chwee Mok (Eliot) and Ma Hsiao Ho (Ricci) have been selected to represent the Hong Kong Chung Hwa Team (China Athlete) in the Kwangtung Athletic Meeting on May 25. The former will take part in two events, pole vault and shot-put, while the latter will run in the 10,000 metres. Lee Hah Liong, this year's University champion, and also champion at the Inter-Varsity Meeting, has been asked to attend, but it is said that he has a bad knee, and cannot, therefore, do very much. Ho Shui Cheong is also among those selected.

Lee Chwee Mok broke the University pole-vault record (for which he was presented a "green") in 1930 by clearing 8 feet 8 inches. This year he was absent from both the University Annual Sports and the Inter-Varsity meet, and has, therefore, not created any new record, but he should do well in this event. The best he has done is 10 feet 2 inches, but it was not an official record.

The winner at the Inter-Varsity Meeting did 10 feet and 1 inch (three students tied). That has become a record for Kwangtung. If Lee can only equal his best effort, he will establish another new record for Kwangtung.

Ma Hsiao Ho was first in 10,000 metres at the Inter-Varsity sports (time—42 mins. 9/8 sec.), but this time he will meet many rivals from Canton. He is training daily at the University Pavilion, and he hopes to improve his time.

EXPLOSION NEAR CANTON.TWELVE PERSONS KILLED.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CANTON, May 6.

The terrific explosion of the middle magazine of the Midstream Rock Fort, on the east approach to Canton, which occurred yesterday morning, caused death to 12 persons and severe injuries to 11, according to the official report of the Police. The force of the explosion was so terrific that a big hole 7 feet deep was made. According to the report under review 12 large boxes of high explosives, valued at about $20,000, were destroyed. The shock was so great that numerous window panes in Tungshan were broken.

HOUSES WITHOUT WATER SUPPLY.SLIGHT REDUCTION IN RATES.*TO-DAY'S LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL MEETING.

A slight reduction in rates for those who do not enjoy a water supply is foreshadowed in a resolution which is to be moved by the Colonial Secretary at to-day's Legislative Council meeting. The resolution is as follows:—

Resolved by the Legislative Council that on and from the date to be fixed by His Excellency the Governor for the coming into effect of this resolution the following percentage shall be payable as rates, namely, for any tenement assessed, 17 per cent. Provided that the said percentage shall be reduced to 10 per cent., in the case of any tenement for the water supply of which from the Government waterworks the only provision made is a supply of unfiltered water, and shall be reduced to 15 per cent., in the case of any tenement for which no provision is made for any supply of water from such waterworks. For the purposes of this resolution provision for water supply shall be deemed to be made for a tenement, although it has not connection with the Government waterworks or waterworks, if such tenement is situated within 200 yards from a Government water-main.

Other matters to come before the Council are the first readings of the Bills to amend the law relating to bankruptcy, to amend further the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1909, to amend the Vaccination Ordinance, 1923, and to amend the Legal Practitioners Ordinance, 1871.

HONG KONG, MAY 7, 1931.

WEATHER AND WORK.

The weather, as Lieutenant-Commander Dymott, reminded the Rotary Club, is for English people
an unending topic of conversation
for it is something which is so obviously shared by everybody.

Hong Kong for about five months
has been under a cloud; the depression seems to have been more or less fixed. Hardly a bright spot on the horizon has appeared for months. Curiously enough the condition of the weather seems to have been a faithful reflection, of the mental depression prevailing because of the economic situation.
Some new-comers to Hong Kong
having heard much about the excellence of its winter have expressed the hope that they will be elsewhere before the next good weather is due!

Undoubtedly the weather affects human behaviour. A sunny disposition can hardly be expected
under a permanently clouded sky.
Spring in Europe with its balmy breezes and its bright days stimu-lates the flow of sap in plants, and
blood in man, whose thoughts, at least in some cases, lightly turn to love.

It has been said that Russia was never properly governed after PETER THE GREAT transferred his headquarters to St. Petersburg.
The bleak north seems to have hardened the outlook of the rulers, frozen their sympathy and caused them to withdraw within the recesses of their palaces. The numbing effect of excessive cold,
however, is not in its results so different from the enervating and depressing consequences of excessive humid heat. In this connection one wonders whether the change from Peking in the north to Nanking in the centre of China will have any appreciable effects upon the character of legislators and administrators. Probably what is gained in winter at Nanking will be balanced by the excessive heat of summer, when Peking has the advantage. As scientists study more closely the effects of climate upon human efficiency, they will probably furnish us with the means of combating the debilitating effects of humid heat just as they have enabled us to withstand the rigours of the cold winter. It is certainly easier to get comfortably warm in winter than it is to get really cool in summer.

Experiments conducted on animals at varying temperatures and different degrees of humidity have shown that the optimum temperature is 69 deg. with a humidity of 52 per cent. If these are raised to 75 deg. and 70, respectively, the amount of work done falls 15 per cent. while an increase to 91 deg.
and 90 per cent. humidity causes
a drop of 25 per cent. on output.
When, as often happens in Hong Kong there is stagnant air, in addition to high temperature and high humidity, the effect on efficiency, accuracy and concentration must be considerable. Much of the work in offices is of a mechanical nature,
and the introduction of calculating machines, and other modern devices reduces the mental strain but there is a limit to such development. Administrative problems, have to be solved, policies laid down, and decisions taken, and in this realm the machine must fail. It is probable that there is clearer and more logical thinking in Hong Kong

from October to April than there is from April to October. When Hong Kong head and Hong Kong memory are causing trouble.

If it is true that the excessive humidity and heat in summer have
this dulling effect upon the mind,
it is no less true that they also render the average individual more liable to outbursts of irritability.
Anything, therefore, which reduces the causes of physical and mental disturbances in summer is to be welcomed. Hill stations, modern refrigerators, bathing facilities, cooling systems for offices, and houses all tend to stimulate the bodily organs, revitalise the intellect, and increase business and administrative efficiency.

NOT THE MARSEILLES WE KNOW!

In coming out East most of us spend some very happy hours in Marseilles. It seems a pleasant bustling town, with excellent shops, restaurants and cinemas. There are a few discreet cabarets, which we make up parties to visit after dinner. The town seems very peaceful and friendly; and yet a well-informed Home paper says of it:—"Marseilles, Europe's own Chicago, was last month in the throes of a municipal election, which, for a variety of reasons, has much more than a local interest.
Its politics are as flouting as its Canebiere."

Then our London contemporary gets eloquent and gives us the following details, lurid enough to form the basis of a best seller:—"Political graffiti is rampant. A bar was advertised for sale. Among the assets the vendor unblushingly named his friendship with a certain municipal councillor, and 147
Spring in Europe with its balmy

lates the flow of sap in plants, and
blood in man, whose thoughts, at

Nothing so like America has ever been seen in Europe. Saloon-keepers have their gangs, every member of which knows that he is liable to be 'bumped off' or 'taken for a ride' if he shows signs of disobedience. The duties of the gangs are many, for in the saloons more than the elections are prepared. There are plans for the manufacture of false identity papers, seals for passports, and forgeries of Ambassadors' signatures. The saloon-keeping politician has first of all to justify his position as a 'boss' by protecting his men. There are many ways in France whereby a jury can be influenced, and acquittals for murder are customary. No jury dare convict. But the gangster's great power is electoral. He buys votes—whether of the living or the dead. Forged votes are as plentiful as leaves in autumn. The scandal has grown so pronounced of late that the Home Secretary
some time ago sent a Police Commissioner to report upon the situation. Nothing has altered or improved. It would need tidal waves or an earthquake to effect any change."

Mr. Maxton's Challenge.

Mr. Maxton, greatly daring, has challenged the Prime Minister to a golf match, and has promised to give him advice on his game. Mr.
Maxton, is suffering from the golf fever, and has recently been throwing challenges about. But despite a beautiful follow-through captured
last summer and recorded on a cherished photograph, he cannot hope to stand up to the Prime Minister, who plays down to a 9
handicap. That would not deter
Mr. Maxton from giving the Prime Minister advice on his game. He has been tendering advice to Mr.
MacDonald for a long time. However, it is good to know that the very leader of Glasgow's wild men plays golf. The true fanatic de-spises everything and everyone, including, very often, himself!

Play It Out!

"Draws are no use for anything.
except bathing."—The late S. M. J.
Woods.

Lobsters and Wickets.

The late S. M. J. Woods had become in recent years a legendary figure, and the stories that surround
his name are legion. A contemporary critic says that as a bowler he was unplayable if he had rested the day before. As a matter of fact, he scorned rest. One of his best performances was against C. L.
Thornton's England XI at Cambridge. That morning C. L. Thornton, A. J. Webb, George Vernon and Percy de Paravicini came to breakfast with Woods and Gregor MacGregor at Jesus. The meal consisted of seven hot lobsters,
which the older men refused.
Woods and MacGregor ate their fill, washing them down with copious draughts of audit ale. An hour later Woods went on to the field and took all ten wickets!

Rupert Brooke.

The legend of Rupert Brooke has outstripped the reality, and a faintly artificial atmosphere hung about the recent celebrations at Skyros,
for in fact Brooke has merged into the Adonis-Adonis myth, gathering meanwhile the accumulated associations of Shelley and Byron,
and Landor. The real Rupert Brooke was English to the core,
and with all his exuberance there were many moments when the fluttering of his fair eyelashes
would indicate the public school reserve. The nude figure which shines among the sparse olives of Skyros is a monument to Adonis;
it is not a monument to Brooke.

Queer Claims.

Among last year's violent deaths
in America, it is recorded, was one from the bite of a crab. But then the oddest accidents do occur in America, as the insurance companies will testify. On one occasion a young man claimed under an accident policy on the ground that he had been holding his beloved so long on his knee that his leg "went to sleep," with the result that when he stood up he fell and injured himself. Another young man (at least one hopes it was another) claimed because his beloved hugged him so enthusiastically on his return from a long absence that she broke two of his ribs.

Cat Stops a Radio Station.

A flash, a crash, a succession of cracks like a machine-gun. Then silence. The generators in the power house at Moorside Edge broadcasting station were at a standstill. "That's a short-circuit
in C panel," said one of the engineers. "I'll have a look at
it. . . ." The doors of the panel were swung open and out fell the body of a cat—the station pet.
Poor pussy had stepped on ten thousand volts. A British Broadcasting Corporation official explained: "The cat delighted in prowling
about the tunnels under the transmitters, where the maze of wires is run. She must have crawled up a narrow pipe and got into one of the transmitting panels. The ten thousand volt cables did the rest."

Mr. Wells is at his best when he was a gay and vivid speech which he made at the dinner of the Asso-

icipation of brilliant trade prospects

Looking Back 50 Years.

We reproduce, in full, to-day, Dr.
Happer's interesting paper on the population of China. The opinions expressed therein are, we think,
based on good and reasonable grounds, arrived at after a careful consideration of the events of the past thirty years in the Central Kingdom and its present conditions. It is a coincidence that in October last, when Dr. Happer's paper must have been passing through the Press, in the course of an article on the same subject, we also gave three hundred millions
as an outside estimate of the population of China and then expressed a belief that "China's Millions" had been considerably magnified. These errors of exaggeration are very liable to occur
where it is impossible to obtain reliable statistics. China undoubtedly contains a vast population and it was natural, in the days when the Empire was practically a sealed book to Europeans, that much speculation should have been rife
as to the number of the inhabitants.
Crowded cities were known to stud
the whole of the eighteen provinces,
agricultural and gardening operations were carried on such a minute scale, right up to the terraced side of the hills, and such an enormous floating population,
in creeks, rivers, and on the coast,
was visible that it is not wonderful that the numbers should have been seriously exaggerated.—Hong Kong Daily Press, May 7, 1931.

CANTON PREPARES FOR WAR.

TROOPS CONCENTRATING ON NORTHERN BORDER.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CANTON, May 6. Following an agreement with the Kwangsi "Ironside" coalition, all the Cantonese troops belonging to the 8th Military Route under General Chen Tsai Tong in Kwangsi have been withdrawn to Canton and are being transferred to Shui-kwan and other parts of the northern border of Kwangtung for defensive purposes. All the military and civil organs of General Chen Tsai Tong in the conquered area in Kwangsi have been closed and turned over to General Li Tsung Jen and General Chung Fat Fui in accordance with the terms of the agreement. There are no more Cantonese troops in Wuchow and other parts of Kwangsi, and the control of the Province is once more entirely in the hands of its own people.

Some of these returning troops are still encamped in the outskirts of Canton, preparatory to moving to the northern border of Kwangtung. A great number has already gone up, and the Canton-Hankow Railway has of late been busy transporting troops and war supplies north. Troops are marching through the streets of Canton almost day and night on their way to various places. Trucks loaded with barbed wire, axes, picks, ammunition and cooking utensils are also constantly seen on the streets. Upon being asked, a soldier on guard told your correspondent that the war material was brought back from Kwangsi.

Hunan Expedition.

It is reported that General Li Tsung Jen will remain in Kwangsi and take charge of the affairs of the Province, civil as well as military, while Generals Chang Fat Fui and Pei Chung Hsi will lead an expedition against Marshal Chiang Kai Shek through Hunan.

That the present anti-Chiang Kai Shek regime in Canton is definitely lining itself up with the Kwangsi clique is indicated in the return from exile of a large number of high officials of the former Li Tsai Hsin administration. Thus Mr. Fung Chok Man, Commissioner of Finance during the Li Tsai Hsin administration, General Hsu King Tong, who was driven out of Canton at the time when General Chen Ming Shu became Governor of Kwangtung, Chang Man, Ip Tsing and other subordinates of Marshal Li Tsai Hsin all returned to Canton in response to the request of General Chen Tsai Tong. These men will take an active part in the revolt against Marshal Chiang Kai Shek. Mr. Fung Chok Man left here for Hong Kong yesterday with Mr. Chen Wai Chow, brother of General Chen Tsai Tong, on his way to Tientsin and other places in North China to enlist the support of different military generals from the North in the coming anti-Chiang Kai Shek war in accordance with instructions from General Chen Tsai Tong.

Canton-Kwangsi Alliance.

It appears that a Canton-Kwangsi alliance has been formed, or is in the process of formation. But it is unlikely that the present regime in Canton will line itself up with the extremist faction of the Kuomintang under the leadership of Mr. Wang Ching Wei, notwithstanding that both are bitterly opposed to Chiang Kai Shek. There has been some talk in official circles about a possible return of Mr. Wang Ching Wei, who is reported to be in Hong Kong. But the bitter hatred between his group, known as "Leftists," and the group led by Hu Han Min and Kuo Ying Fun, known as "Rightists," is too deeply engendered to admit of this. That Wang Ching Wei wanted to take an active rôle in the revolt against Chiang Kai Shek is indicated in his recent telegram to Chang Fat Fui and Li Tsung Jen, pleading for union of action against "the autocrat of Nanking." The telegram states that the simpler the object the easier will it be achieved. Let the object be, according to Mr. Wang's suggestion, "the ousting of Chiang Kai Shek, the autocrat of Nanking," and when that is achieved, the other questions, such as formation of government, division of power, etc., may be settled peacefully by conference. The Canton authorities are hesitating over Mr. Wang's ideas and suggestions, although they are strongly endorsed by Chang Fat Fui and the leaders of the former Kwangsi clique.

ANTI-CHIANG PROPAGANDA.

The anti-Chiang Kai Shek faction in Canton, which came into power following the coup d'état of last Wednesday, has of late been doing a great deal of propaganda work. The Min Kuo Daily News, its official organ, is daily devoting a great deal of space to such pro-

EXTRALITY IN CHINA.

MR. HENDERSON'S STATEMENT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 6. Replying to questions on the subject of extrality Mr. Henderson said that an agreement had been reached on a large number of details. The treaty providing on one hand, the transfer of jurisdiction over British subjects in China from British to Chinese Courts, and, on the other hand for the safeguards relating to the administration of justice calculated to give a feeling of confidence and security to British nationals and British interests under the new régime.

A serious obstacle to a speedy and successful conclusion of the negotiations, however, had arisen in connection with certain important Treaty Ports which, in the view of His Majesty's Government, must be excluded from the provisions of the treaty until changes were made in the municipal administration at those ports to meet the new situation created by the abolition of extra-territorial rights.

Mr. Henderson, continuing, said that this attitude of His Majesty's Government was influenced not only by the consideration of chaos that must ensue from any sudden change in the jurisdiction of the ports in question but also by the fact that they could not alone decide the question since other Powers were also concerned.

China Disagrees.

As a way out of the difficulty His Majesty's Government recently suggested to the Chinese Government that they would be prepared, immediately on conclusion of the treaty, to agree to the appointment of a special commission which would proceed forthwith to study the whole problem of reserved areas with a view to finding a satisfactory solution, unfortunately, the Chinese Government had not seen its way to agree either to the point of view of His Majesty's Government on the question of reserved areas or to the appointment of its suggested commission.

His Majesty's Government, however, had not abandoned hope that if time allowed for further discussion a satisfactory solution will be found and we need not emphasise our sincere desire to reach a friendly settlement.

With regard to the attitude of other Powers I have seen a statement in the Press by the Chinese Foreign Minister but I have no official information regarding the final position of the negotiations between the Chinese Government and these Powers.

The House will, I am sure, agree with me in recognising the devotion and ability with which Sir Miles Lampson has conducted the long and complicated negotiations.

London, May 6. Huge strips of white cloth bearing anti-Chiang Kai Shek slogans are to be seen tied on to telephone poles across the principal thoroughfares. Walls in all the conspicuous places are placarded with similar slogans.

"Ironside" Prepares.

(Wah Tze Yat Pao.)

Wuchow, May 6. With the conclusion of peace terms with the Canton military authorities, the "Ironside" are making great preparations to start an expedition to Hunan as a first step leading to an anti-Nanking campaign to be participated in by a number of warlords in south-western China. It is reported that they have obtained financial backing from Canton.

General Chang Fat Fui, the leader of the "Ironside" is mobilizing his forces at Lungchow in readiness to move to Kweilin (in northern Kwangsi) while General Pei Sung Hsi is concentrating the Kwangsi army at Guichow which may be ordered to march over the Hunan border at any moment.

General Li Chung Jen will remain at Nanking to take control of the Kwangsi situation.

Civil War May Be Averted.

SHANGHAI, May 6. Although he is the principal man responsible for a telegram issued at Canton denouncing Marshal Chiang Kai Shek and charging him with usurping his power in the Central Government, General Chen Tsai Tong has telegraphed to the Nanking leaders setting forth his real attitude towards the Central Government in a most conciliatory manner.

With this in view, it is believed in Nanking Government circles that efforts could be made to compromise the disgruntled elements in Canton, thus averting a civil war.

DISARMAMENT DISCUSSION.

BRITISH POLITICIANS EXCHANGING VIEWS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 6. The three British political parties, which are exchanging views in order to establish a common basis of agreement on the question of disarmament, which will strengthen the hands of the Government in presenting to the World a completely united front, apart from political considerations, have arranged a meeting fixed to take place to-morrow which is to be a continuation of the discussion inaugurated a fortnight ago.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

In order to ensure National unity upon the British policy towards the great International issue of disarmament conversations, which were instituted sometime ago, are continuing upon this subject between leaders of the Government, Conservatives and Liberals.

Disarmament is recognised in all parties as the foremost International problem of the present generation and there is a general desire that any possibility of its becoming a party issue should be avoided.

It will be remembered that at the Indian Round Table Conference all political parties were represented in the British Parliamentary Delegation.

FRENCH NAVAL EXPERT RETURNS TO LONDON.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 6. The principal French naval expert, Massigli, is returning to London to-day from Paris after having yesterday conferred with the French Premier, M. Laval, the Foreign Minister, M. Briand, and M. Dumont, the Navy Minister. It is understood that M. Massigli is bringing the written reply of his Government on which naval discussions with the British and French representatives will be resumed.

According to newspapers the negotiations are unlikely to end before the Foreign Ministers of the three Powers have met at Geneva.

BRITISH BOYCOTT IN INDIA.

REMARKABLE SCENE AT MANCHESTER EXCHANGE.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 5. There was a remarkable and dramatic scene on the floor of the Manchester Royal Exchange to-day, when 8,000 members assembled for the purpose of recording, by special permission of the Directors, Lancashire's protest against the Indian boycott and the increased import duties on cotton goods.

The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, urged the Government to use the utmost endeavour to procure a remedy. A counterblast to the above was provided at Bombay, where Mr. Mody, Chairman of the Mill-owners' Association, who was a member of the Round Table Conference, when interviewed, declared that Lancashire stood in need of clear thinking. He emphasised the effect of India's reduced purchasing power and reminded Lancashire that India would not surrender the right to use the tariff as necessary, also that the movement in favour of Indian made cloth would be permanent.

He said that Lancashire's plea of goodwill and fair dealing would find a ready response with many Indian business men, but political pressure was powerless to effect the sale of Lancashire goods, just as a political boycott was powerless to circumvent economic laws.

SUGAR CRISIS.

SUSPENSION OF JAMAICA'S WAR CONTRIBUTION.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 5. It was stated in the House of Commons to-day that in view of the existing crisis in the sugar industry His Majesty's Government had agreed to the suspension for 1931-32 of the Annual War Contribution of £20,000 paid by Jamaica.

H.M. KING GEORGE.

21 YEARS ON BRITISH THRONE.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 6. The twenty-first anniversary of King George's accession to the Throne was celebrated to-day. Their Majesties spent the day quietly at Windsor.

At noon a Royal Salute of 21 guns was fired in London and at all Naval and Military stations throughout the country flags were flown on Government and Public Buildings. Peals of bells were also rung at Windsor and elsewhere.

As at present arranged H.M. the King and H.M. the Queen will return to Buckingham Palace on Saturday and will remain until White Sunday when they will proceed to Sandringham for a few days.

As yet it is undecided whether H.M. the King will attend the two courts on May 10 and May 20.

World-Wide Satisfaction.

H.M. the King yesterday received Dr. Henry Martyn, Surgeon Apothecary to the Household at Windsor, and conferred the Knight-hood of the Royal Victorian Order upon him.

Messages of congratulation to Their Majesties on to-day's Anniversary have come from all parts of the Empire and newspapers survey the great changes and events that have occurred during the present King's reign.

Satisfaction everywhere is expressed that the occasion finds His Majesty far on the road to convalescence after his recent indisposition. This morning the King and Queen again went for a walk in Windsor Castle grounds.

RUGBY, May 6. H.M. the King's uncle, the Duke of Connaught, has returned to London after spending the winter in the south of France.

SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT OF COAL.

ASSISTANCE BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 5. In the House of Commons to-day, the Mines Secretary, Mr. T. Shinnie, said that he had consulted with the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research on the best way the Government could assist the development of low temperature carbonisation and other processes for the scientific treatment of coal.

Substantial progress had been made in the last four years and certain processes were being operated on a commercial scale.

Effective help would be given by the Government, first in experiments for the purpose of improving, by refining, the value of tar oil by-products of low temperature carbonisation, and secondly by inducing a wider use in the Government service of smokeless fuel.

He was considering what could be done to increase the use of purified fuel, especially for marine purposes. Important research had been carried out at the fuel research station and would continue.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF DUKE OF SOMERSET.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 6. The death occurred to-day of the Rt. Hon. Lord Henry Somerset.

The late Duke of Somerset was born on December 7, 1849. He married in 1873, Isabel, the eldest daughter of the 3rd Earl Spencer. From 1871-1890 he was M.P. for Monmouthshire; Comptroller of H.M.'s Household, 1874-79. The late Duke wrote the following songs: Hush Me; O Sorrow; All Through the Night; The First Spring Day; A Birthday; Echo; Two Doves and Pieta Signore; Dawn, etc.

FINANCIAL CRISIS IN AUSTRALIA.

"DEFAULT NOT ONLY ALTERNATIVE."

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

CANBERRA, May 6. A deadlock has been reached between the Federal Government Board and the Commonwealth Bank over a provision in the Commonwealth Bank Amendment Bill empowering the Government to draw on the Banks gold reserve for overseas debt payments.

Sir Robert Gibson, Chairman of the Bank, who appeared on the Senate House's request to-day, said that the bank had not approved of the proposed £2,000,000 gold shipment on the ground that it would adversely affect Australian confidence in the note issue.

There was an uproar when Sir Robert Gibson declared that default was not the only alternative to gold shipment.

The New South Wales Nationalist, Mr. Dunn, was ejected when declaring the position was "a frame up," and that Sir Robert Gibson had been brought in by anti-Government Nationalists as a propagandist.

LATER. Sir Robert Gibson, who was interrogated for three hours, refused to discuss political remedies or explain his statement that default was not the only alternative, but, that in the Government's responsibility. He added that if the Government did not take the other step, and the choice lay between the shipping of gold or defaulting, he would prefer to ship gold.

MISSION WORK IN THE FAR EAST.

DIFFICULTIES DUE TO ANTI-GOD-ENTHUSIASM.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 5. There are some places in the world where the strain on missionaries is extremely great and difficult. China and India are particular examples," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, presiding over the Church Missionary Society gathering at the Albert Hall to-day.

The difficulties of the work in China were partly due to the anti-God enthusiasm of Moscow, and partly to the internal wars. It was small wonder that missionaries find difficulty in carrying on, but there would be no shortage of volunteers to take up the work.

ARCTIC SEARCH FOR MR. COURTAULD.

BRITISH AIRMAN MAY ASSIST IN RESCUE.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 5. One of the most experienced of Arctic aviators, Major F. S. Cotton, left England to-day for Reykjavik, Iceland, to assist, if necessary, in securing Mr. Augustine Courtauld, who remained alone on a Greenland ice-cap. He is accompanied by Lieutenant L. K. Barrow, lent by the Air Ministry as relief pilot, and I. C. K. Bond, wireless operator, and is taking a monoplane equipped for Arctic work.

Major Cotton will attempt to reach Mr. Courtauld, should the effort being made by Captain Ahrensberg fail. Within the past week preparations which would normally take four months have been completed to equip this supplementary expedition.

Major Cotton has done much flying in Labrador and flew over 15,000 miles backwards and forwards over Newfoundland when searching for the missing French Atlantic airmen.

and Capt. T. A. Gladstone were killed to-day when their aeroplane crashed during a violent dust storm at Van Reenen, Natal. The airmen had left Johannesburg in the morning on an air tour of the Union. A local storekeeper saw the machine crash in a sudden gale and found Kidston's visiting card on one of the bodies. His identity was afterwards confirmed by the Police.

Only five weeks ago Comdr. Kidston flew from Britain to Cape Town in the record time of six and a half days.

In the Navy during the War and since as a racing motorist and airman he had many remarkable escapes. Two years ago he was the sole survivor of the German Air Liner's crash near Caterham.

Comdr. Kidston, formerly of the Royal Naval Air Service, had done much to develop flying in Central Africa. He was unmarried.

Comdr. Kidston, who was 31, leaves a wife and child.

FLT.-LT. WAGHORN INJURED.

RESULT OF PARACHUTE LANDING.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, May 5. Flt.-Lieut. Waghorn, the famous winner of the Schneider Trophy, and a civilian observer named Alexander were seriously injured in a parachute landing at Farnborough, Hants, to-day. Their machine, an experimental bomber, was flying at 2,000 feet when it entered a spin and apparently got out of control. Flt.-Lieut. Waghorn and his companion jumped out with parachutes when the machine was close to the ground. The machine crashed at a great speed some distance away and was completely wrecked.

Lieut. Waghorn sustained a fractured thigh and ankle and head injuries and was under-going an operation to-night.

BODIES FRIGHTFULLY MUTILATED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

VAN REENEN, NATAL, May 5. The bodies of Flt. Comdr. Glen Kidston and Capt. T. A. Gladstone were frightfully mutilated. They were apparently flying in the teeth of a hurricane through dense dust clouds and were unable to avoid the peaks of the Drakensberg Mountains suddenly loomed up ahead.

Bodies to be conveyed to England.

CAPE TOWN, May 5. It is understood that the bodies of Flight-Comdr. Glen Kidston and Capt. Gladstone will be conveyed to England for burial.

The wreckage of the "plane lies at the foot of Tantsies Berg hidden in a rosewood forest, the haunt of lonely baboons near towering precipices, amid wild country, where humans have to climb like monkeys.

Accounts of local farmers support the theory that the plane collapsed in mid-air when fighting the gale.

END OF FOOTBALL SEASON.

CHAMPIONS DEFEAT THE REST.

SOUTH CHINA 5: THE REST 1.

The league football season was brought to a close yesterday when South China, winners of the first division cup, presented by The Hong Kong Daily Press, played a team made up from the rest of the Clubs competing in the league. At the conclusion of the match Mrs. Ormiston presented the cups and prizes to winners of the first, second and third divisions as well as the cups for the runners-up in each division.

The Match.

Pau won the toss and elected to defend the Morrison Hill goal. The game was fast right from the start, and the Rest, making some very neat movements on the right wing, gave the Chinese goal a lot of trouble. From this early stage, however, it was noticed that the champions were the better team. They combined better than their opponents and their passing was excellent.

The Rest attacked for a time, but the champions settled down to give a sparkling exhibition of football, with the result that Rodgers, who was keeping goal for the Rest, had an extremely busy time. Their first goal came when Lee Wai-long ran in beautifully to meet a pass and tripped the keeper into the goal with Rodgers hopelessly out of position. About a minute later Fung King-cheung made a solo run down the centre of the field and crowned his effort with a fine goal. Half-time arrived with South China holding a comfortable lead of two goals to nil.

The Second Half.

The second half started off gamely but before play had been in progress for very long, the Rest forced a fruitless corner. From the clearance South China got through and a mistake by Strange saw Lee Wai-long with only the goalie to beat. Lee added his second goal to put his side three up.

South China now monopolised play and with the Rest unable to get pieces, Rodgers had a very busy time and it was only due to his good goal-keeping that the Chinese did not score more frequently. Following a scrimmage outside the Rest goal, however, Ip Pak-wa headed the ball past Rodgers and South China were now holding a comfortable lead of four goals to nothing. Almost immediately after Lee Wai-long got through again and scored the last goal for his side, bringing the total up to five. The Rest then threw through and just before time, Lowden receiving the ball when placed in an awkward position won rounds of applause by hooking the ball over his shoulders into the goal.

The teams were:—
South China:—Pau, Li Tinsun, Tam Kwong-pak, Leuk Yin-shan, Leung Wing-chiu, Tong Kwan, Chan Sui-tong, Chu Kwok-luen, Fung King-cheung, Lee Wai-long and Ip Pak-wa.

The Rest:—Rodgers, Strange, Blackburn, Hedley, Hay and Lam Yuk-ying; B. Gosano, Lowden, A. Gosano, Crimwood and Janson.

EXHIBITION TENNIS.

SETBACK FOR CHAMPIONS.

KHOO HOOI HYE SHINES.

In the second day of the series of exhibitions now going on, arranged by the Hong Kong Cricket Club and the Lawn Tennis Association, Khoo Hooi Hye and P. Kong beat the Rumjahn Cousins by three sets to one, the result being 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 in their favour.

The Chinese pair very early struck form and before the local champions could get settled, they had obtained a commanding lead, which they eventually converted into a set.

Maintaining their superiority in the following set, the Chinese outplayed the Indians and by dint of consistent pressure, under which the latter's game broke down repeatedly, they secured the second set also.

Rumjahns Attack.

The Rumjahns came into their own in the third set, when they attacked with determination, and controlled their shots so well that they succeeded in winning a love-set. The Chinese, however, retaliated immediately, and ran away with a lead of 5-1, and, after conceding the next game, concluded the match by taking the fourth set at 6-2.

On the run of play, the local champions gave an indifferent performance. They did not produce much of their fiery attack.

Kho, however, played a splendid game throughout and to him belongs most of the credit. His driving was consistently good, while at volleying he tricked the Rumjahns with many subtle shots. Kong played steadily throughout.

Singles Match.

Subsequently, Khoo met C. A. L. Rumjahn in a singles exhibition. Although apparently affected by his strenuous performance in the doubles, he held his own, showing up, even better at driving. He ran up a lead of 5-2, and after Rumjahn had won the next game, the match was stopped.

Andrews at Singles.

Local followers of the game will be pleased to learn that Andrews, the visiting ex-Davis Cup player, will give a singles exhibition to-day on the Stand Court. C. A. L. Rumjahn, the champion, will provide the opposition and a fine match is anticipated.

AMERICANS ESTABLISH TWO NEW MARKS.

Tokyo, April 26.—Two more records fell to-day, the second day of the Kwantu track and field championships.

Earlier in the day, Yoshioka won a heat in the semi-final of the same race, in the same time that he accomplished in the final.

Mohart, the American shot putting champion, won the shot put event with 14.31 metres, which was 1.31 metres better than the best Japanese, Takata, who took second place. Takata has held the Japanese record since 1920, when he made 13.51 metres.

M.C.C.'S PROGRAMME.

HENDREN: A BENEFIT FOR A HERO AT LORDS.

M.C.C. begin their season with matches v. Yorkshire and Surrey in the early days of May; but since Easter Monday Lord's has resounded to the music of bat and ball, for the classes for boys, first instituted by Sir Francis Lacey, and now prefigured over by W. Findlay, the secretary, R. Aird, his chief of staff, and R. H. Routledge, assisted by competent coaches, are in full swing.

Every day for three weeks 100 boys will be practising, in the open if the weather be fine, under cover should it be wet, and it is a sight well worth seeing, and one which must appeal to every enthusiast. Morning and afternoon the practice ground is crowded, with mothers, fathers, sisters, and aunts, and occasionally a nurse of some budding champion, while the older generation of cricketers, too, make a point of turning up. A delightfully happy atmosphere pervades the famous ground, and it is good to hear a coach say, "Come and look at this little boy, sir. He is only twelve, but in ten years' time he will be playing for the Gentlemen."

Usefulness of Coaching.

When I was a boy there were none of the opportunities for practice which abound nowadays, not only at Lord's but at the various coaching schools, such as Fankner's, Hendren's, and Sandham's, so that the rising generation may, and do, consider themselves extremely fortunate.

Some aver that coaching can be overdone. This is, no doubt, true, but sensible teachers such as are to be found at Lord's and elsewhere, while insisting on the fundamentals of the game, allow full scope for natural ability and genius. Fielding is taught, as well as batting, though one misses the great and almost majestic figure of W. Brearley, the Lancashire fast bowler, who for so many years gave such enthusiasm and point to his remarks. However, he has worthy successors, and "Spin her, sir, spin her," is a frequent exhortation; and it was a red-letter day when Lord Harris himself, in bowler hat and with a tiny hat in his hands, allowed three or four delighted little boys to send down a few balls to him. Just as the sun, according to the Greeks, "washes away all the woes of man," so does a visit to Lord's during these spring days bring comfort to the soul of the cricketer.

There are, of course, the Middlesex matches at Lord's, and, in addition to the fixtures with Yorkshire and Surrey, M.C.C. play the New Zealanders, on May 16, 18, and 19, Kent, Oxford, and Cambridge, while the Test match v. New Zealand begins on June 27, the University match on July 6, Eton v. Harrow on July 10, and Gentlemen v. Players on July 16.

A Lord's Batman.

There will be the usual school fortnight at the end of July and early in August, and though it is outside the purely M.C.C. programme, I would, because of his close association with Lord's, mention Hendren's benefit match, Middlesex v. Sussex, at White's.

Hendren has made more runs at Lord's than any other cricketer, and this will be his second benefit, so highly is he esteemed by Middlesex. Of his great popularity I will say nothing here—it is "plain for all folks to see," as Macaulay, not the Yorkshire bowler, I must remind Mr. C. J. Y. Weirall, has it—but I will merely add that few men have given a keener or more generous spirit to the game, or played it with a happier joe de vivre. The last occasion on which Hendren had a benefit was in 1923, at a time when a surgeon of unsurpassed skill was interested in me, but I hope to be at Lord's on Whit-Saturday when "Patsy" goes out to bat to hear the tumultuous and affectionate welcome which he will receive from the crowd. It is gratifying to think that in South Africa Hendren maintained his great reputation, both as batsman and fieldman. Wisden tells us that he is 42, but he still fields like a man half his age.

1,500 GUINEAS GOLF COMPETITION.

BIG ENTRY OF ENGLISH AND ARGENTINIAN PROS.

London, April 30.—Nearly all the well-known English professionals and several foreigners, notably Argentines, have entered for the 1,500 guineas golf competition, which begins at Southport on May 11.

Jose Jurado (Argentine) is partnered by W. Wooller of Hollingbury Park; Genta (Argentine) by Willie Hunter, the 1921 British Amateur champion; Churrio (Argentine) by Michael Bingham, of Cooden Beach, and Hector Proctoro (Argentine) by Jones of Hild. Jurado, who gave the Prince of Wales several golf lessons on the R.M.S.P. Arlanza on the way back from South America, renewed his acquaintance with the Prince at Sunningdale this afternoon, when he played against him in a four-ball match. Commentators say that the Prince's swing has very much improved since he last played in England.

ENGLISH RUGBY TROUBLES.

A DISMAL SEASON: NEW BLOOD NEEDED.

SELECTORS' COSTLY MISTAKES.

"What is wrong with English Rugby?" was a question frequently asked me in Paris on the evening after the game at Colombes, when we lost a match we should have won with ease, writes C. W. Pickford in Sporting Life.

Incidentally, the winning or losing of a match is not everything, but in this particular case it resulted in England, the champions of 1930, finishing absolutely last in the competition between the five nations. The extraordinary part of the whole thing is that England drew their first game with Wales, the ultimate winners, and then collapsed, as it were, and were defeated in each of their three remaining games.

The French Rugby people with whom I spent a very pleasant and interesting time, informed me that not only did they expect their depleted force to lose, but on the run of the game they should have done so. This, however, does not entitle us to accept with equanimity a state of affairs in English Rugby which, frankly, I regard as humiliating. In view of the resources at our command.

The Genius of Spong.

It was proved in that first hectic twenty minutes at Colombes that Roger Spong should never have been omitted from the team throughout the season. The French were playing with devastating fury, and had it not been for Spong, although we actually scored first, I believe we should have been overwhelmed. We must have missed Spong; we certainly had cause to regret the absence of Tom Brown at full back.

It was not that Eric Whiteley did not play courageously—he could not do otherwise—but he had no idea of conserving the strength and stamina of a hard-battling pack, as Brown would have done. The irony of the whole thing is that the Bristol player was available—fit and ready to play throughout the hardest game.

At Belfast, after the Ireland and Wales match, I was talking to Harry Packer and Walter Rees, two of the "big men" in Welsh Rugby. "Although it has nothing to do with us," they said "we cannot understand England omitting Brown on any occasion when he is fit enough to play." And that is the opinion of those who have followed the destinies of England this season.

England are the possessors of the wooden spoon of the international championship, but I believe they should have retained the honours they won last season had our resources been sensibly utilised.

Adverse Criticisms.

We have seen and heard adverse criticisms of the Selection Committee in which the suggestion has been freely advanced that they should all be "scrapped" and a new committee elected in their place. With this I do not agree. I would not like to see the "passing" for instance, of James Baxter and John Daniell, but I believe a reasonable change might be beneficial.

If, as I understand, Comd. E. W. Roberts will be home from sea permanently before the commencement of next season, when we shall have the South Africans with us, a place should certainly be found for him. He is not only one of the finest forwards who has ever represented England; he is a wonderful judge of a player, as he proved in 1921, when he almost insisted on E. R. Gardner, the Navy man, then comparatively unknown, being included in the England fifteen of that season. Gardner proved to be a truly great forward, and indispensable to England for several successive seasons.

There is always a tendency to blame selectors when matters go wrong in international sport. It is a popular "quintino" with some people when defeat comes our way. Yet, the Rugby Union might, in this case seriously consider certain alterations, I will leave it at that.

FUTURE OF THE BODLEIAN.

£1,000,000 SCHEME OF CONGREGATION.

COMMISSIONERS' PLAN ADOPTED.

Oxford.—A Decree containing proposals for the settlement of the Bodleian question will, it is announced, be promulgated in Congregation on May 7.

The Decree embodies the proposals made by the Commissioners appointed by the University to make inquiries into the library systems of Europe and America. The estimated cost of the scheme is over £1,000,000.

The proposals are as follows:—
The historic Bodleian to be continued mainly as an enlarged range of reading rooms, with direct and easy access to about 100,000 of the books most in demand. The ground floor of the quadrangle to be used for administrative offices, cloak rooms, and other purposes, including advanced teaching and research at the Librarian's discretion.

The upper floor of the Camera to be maintained as a reading room for undergraduates with additional seating accommodation; the ground floor of the Camera to be used as an exhibition room. Storage to be concentrated in a special building on the Broad-street site capable of holding about five million books.

Broad-street Amenities.

The amenities of Broad-street to be preserved by a front section screening the stock and containing the rooms for the reception, handling, and cataloguing of books and for the housing of special collections.

A rapid service of books to be maintained by mechanical means through a turret between the Bodleian and Broad-street.

Some extension, at the discretion of the Librarian, of the privilege of direct access to the storehouse shelves; the enlargement of the Radcliffe Science Library by the addition of a new wing, and of the Taylorian Modern Languages Library on a site in St. Giles adjoining the institute; the development of the existing system of subsidiary special libraries under the control of the faculties by the provision of accommodation in a new building adjacent to the examination schools; the preparation of a new working catalogue for the Bodleian; and an improvement in the salaries of the Bodleian staff.

Just over a year ago the Congregation accepted the offer of the Rockefeller Foundation to pay the expenses of a commission to study library conditions in Europe and America.

The Commission consisted of Sir Henry Miers (chairman), Sir Frederic Kenyon, Sir Edmund Chambers, Mr. G. N. Clark (Fellow of Oriel), and Mr. H. F. Harrod (student of Christ Church).

They presented their reports on March 19 last, Mr. Harrod submitting a minority report, which criticised that of the majority on the ground that insufficient importance was attached to the cardinal principles of accessibility and concentration.

THREE TIMES A BRIDE AT 25.

FIRST MARRIED WHEN SHE WAS 12.

EX-FOLLIES GIRL WHO "DID NOT WANT TO GO BACK."

Beauty and riches had Peggy Davis. Once a member of the world-famous Ziegfeld Follies, she had married a millionaire; she had a little girl five years old; her home was one of the most beautiful villas on the Riviera. But in her life was some secret which impelled her to drive her car at full speed over a cliff, to fall 500 feet on to the rocks below.

"I do not want to go back to the stage," she wrote in a last message. "Take care of mother and my baby. I am tired of life."

Her last note Peggy Davis wrote in a wistful mood on the Corniche Road. Waiters at the cafe say that she was in a highly nervous state, drank two brandies quickly, scribbled the farewell note—then drove away to her death over the cliffs at Eze-sur-Mer. Travelling at full speed, she came to a corner; instead of turning she drove headlong into space.

Branch of Promise Case.

Her millionaire husband, Mr. David Townsend, is mystified by the tragedy. He is a Sydney man who made his fortune on Wall Street. Mr. Townsend is grief-stricken and refuses to see anyone.

Peggy Davis was only 25, but during that short span of life she was married three times, sued a millionaire for breach of promise and made a bid for film fame.

When only 12 Peggy Davis married Lieutenant-colonel Joseph Alex. Davis, at Ridgefield (Conn.); the union was dissolved. Her second romance was with Mr. Donald Grafton, of Pittsburgh, but she left him when, as she claimed, she found he was already married, and that marriage, too, was annulled. She married her third husband, Mr. Townsend, in 1925. The baby was born the following year.

It was not until she went with Mr. Townsend to his house in New South Wales that she realized that she had married one of the richest men in Australia.

Bitten by a Lion.

Her bid for a place in the film world, which she made after taking a beauty prize, was cut short by a long illness which followed a bite by a lion during a rehearsal. It was while she was engaged in cinema work that she met the Baltimore millionaire whom she afterwards sued for breach of promise.

"She Loved Life."

Mr. David Townsend in an interview stated—

"I cannot under any circumstances admit the suicide theory, despite the police inquiry and the letter left by my wife. She loved her little daughter and life far too much to do anything like that."

"If my wife had wanted to commit suicide there were other methods far less complicated. Shortly before her death my wife drank two double glasses of cognac. For a person who was generally sober this would have a big effect on her faculties. At the spot where the accident occurred the road is very winding, and a witness states that she saw the car make a very pronounced zigzag along the road."

"All that was needed was a violent twist on the steering wheel to send the car over the precipice. This, I am sure, is what happened."

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend lived happily, and had a wide circle of friends at their villa, Les Embruns, at Cap Ferrat.

Mrs. Townsend, tall and dark, was one of the beauties of the Riviera. She had intended to take part in the beautiful battle of flowers and had chosen a yellow dress to wear in a car decorated with yellow flowers.

AMERICAN MYSTERY BOMBER.

GIANT MACHINE ABLE TO CARRY 2,500 LBS. OF BOMBS.

Seattle, April 29.—Extreme secrecy today was surrounding the tests of a new United States Army bombing aeroplane. The plane is described as having the ability to carry 2,500 pounds of explosives. It has a wing spread of 70 feet and is capable of great speed.

Guards surrounded the airport during the tests of the new craft to-day. It is understood that when the trials have been completed here the aeroplane will be shipped to Washington for further testing.
